Painting and Power Washing Services

Includes category intelligence for exterior or interior painting services; power washing, pressure washing and waterproofing services; window cleaning; and gutter and roof cleaning services.

Industry Background

Primary NAICS Code: 238320
Paint and Wall Covering Contractors

Primary SIC Code: 1799
Special Trade Contractors, NEC (except indoor swimming pool contractors; anchored earth retention contractors; glass tinting work; forming contractors; ornamental metal work contractors; lightning rod installation contractors; paint and wall paper removal contractors; countertop, residential-type, installation; miscellaneous residential building finishing contractors; dewatering contractors; test drilling for construction; and core drilling for construction)

Industry Intel

Painting contractors provide interior and exterior painting services to residential, commercial and industrial clients. While some technical training programs exist for painters and wall covering specialists, most of the professionals learn through on-the-job training.

The industry is populated by small businesses, and barriers to entry are low because the equipment and training necessary to launch a paint contracting business are inexpensive in comparison to other businesses.

Contractors typically purchase paint and other coatings on behalf of clients, and they also purchase equipment and supplies necessary to complete the job, such as ladders, brushes and rollers.

Painting contractors may be expected to bid for jobs, especially for commercial or institutional work. In the residential market, they must sell their services in a way that convinces homeowners it is worth having a professional do the job. Many homeowners will do painting work, especially interior painting, themselves.

Large issues facing the typical painting contractor include the high cost of insurance, which drives up the cost for clients. Because painting is considered an unskilled profession, these business owners face difficulties in securing legal documented workers.

The painting industry includes approximately 268,000 businesses that report revenue of $42.7 billion.

The pressure washing service generates an approximate annual revenue of $1.2 billion with about 32,200 businesses

POWER/PRESSURE WASHING SERVICES

These businesses provide high-powered cleaning via power washer equipment to both consumers and businesses. Note the difference between power and pressure washing:

- Power Washing: A power washer provides steady streams of heated water, which works well to rid surfaces of mold, mildew and thick clumps of dirt.
- Pressure Washing: Pressure washers clean through water pressure alone. Pressure washers work well on masonry, brick and concrete.

Typically, these services are used to clean building exteriors and cement (such as sidewalks and garages), as well as to prep structures for painting and restore wood.

Washing may be the sole service provided by a company, or one of a selection of services; the industry is very fragmented and is primarily made up of independent contractors. Note though that franchised businesses are popping up, and this trend will likely continue as economic conditions improve from the recent recession.

Emphasis is placed on professionalism, experience and environmentally safe practices. These businesses must work in accordance with the EPA's Clean Water Act.
