Industry Background

Primary NAICS Code: 531311
Residential Property Managers

Primary SIC Code: 6513
Operators of Apartment Buildings

Industry Intel

Large industry operators manage thousands of apartment units often concentrated in one geographic area. At the other end of the market, IROs or Independent Rental Owners may have only one or two rental units and operate these primarily as investments.

The industry includes approximately 819,000 businesses and generates revenue of $282.3 billion. Industry professionals predict that demand for apartments will continue to be strong. Rising rents have affected affordability and decreased the number of consumers looking to rent, increasing vacancies. Operating expenses also increased due to people staying at home more frequently.

Online apartment rental services, which operate via rental listing websites, have increased in popularity. These services allow consumers to look for rentals fitting certain criteria, such as specific amenities, location and price. This segment of the rental industry has about 1,238 businesses and an approximate market size of $905.1 million.

Purchase Consideration Cycle

People are advised to start looking one to two months before moving from their previous residence. Often, they will attend a showing or scheduled tour of the rental before applying. Most rentals require people to pay a fee during the application process. They will also most likely do a tenant screening. The time taken to complete these steps can vary, with the average length of time being a few hours to three days.

Credibility - and whether a person has it or not - determines who you trust for guidance and information you use to make decisions in your everyday life. The four components of credibility for any human being are (1) being known, (2) being likable, (3) being helpful, and (4) being trustworthy. Credibility is gained (or lost) by what one says, how they say it, what they do and, finally, what others say about them. Having credibility also requires having others' best interests at heart.
