B2B

In 2026, B2B marketing budgets will continue to rise, with 70% of companies increasing spending over the prior year. Marketers will be prioritizing content, AI-driven capabilities and customer experience optimization as B2B programs become more data-driven and personalized. The shift toward targeted digital channels, especially content syndication, directories, email, and paid social, reflects a move away from broad exposure and toward higher-quality lead generation.

Content marketing (30%) and AI tools and applications (28%) now dominate budget allocations, indicating that companies are investing in scalable content engines and automation technologies. Customer experience and journey optimization also climbed into the top tier of spending at 26%, underscoring the importance of personalization and unified buyer journeys.

Businesses are making the following formats a top area of spending in 2026:

- Content marketing - 30%
- AI tools and applications - 28%
- Customer experience and journey optimization - 26%
- Public relations and media outreach - 20%
- Search engine marketing (SEM) - 20%
- Social media management and tools - 18%
- Direct and print advertising - 18%
- SEO - 16%
- Paid social media campaigns - 16%
- Market research and competitive analysis - 16%
- Marketing technology - 15%

30%

- Account-based marketing (ABM) - 11%
- Directories and sponsorships - 11%
- Email marketing platforms and campaigns - 11%
- Event marketing (in-person and virtual) - 8%
- Website development and optimization - 5%
- Video marketing and production - 5%

B2B companies in 2026 will emphasize paid social media, content syndication and highly personalized content supported by AI and automation. LinkedIn remains the leading paid social channel, and newer platforms like Reddit are gaining traction for niche B2B targeting. Video, interactive formats and AI-supported content production continue to accelerate across industries.

Target Customers

Consumer bankruptcy filers represent the largest and most critical segment for bankruptcy attorneys. This segment drives consistent demand across consumer Chapter 7 liquidations and Chapter 13 repayment plans, making it the primary focus for law firms marketing bankruptcy services.

Most bankruptcy cases are filed under the three main chapters of the Bankruptcy Code:

- Chapter 7 - entitled Liquidation, contemplates an orderly, court-supervised procedure by which a trustee takes over the assets of the debtor's estate, reduces them to cash, and makes distributions to creditors, subject to the debtor's right to retain certain exempt property and the rights of secured creditors.
- Chapter 11 - entitled Reorganization, ordinarily is used by commercial enterprises that desire to continue operating a business and repay creditors concurrently through a court-approved plan of reorganization (People in business or individuals can also seek relief in chapter 11).
- Chapter 13 - entitled Adjustment of Debts of an Individual With Regular Income, is designed for an individual debtor who has a regular source of income. Chapter 13 is often preferable to chapter 7 because it enables the debtor to keep a valuable asset, such as a house, and because it allows the debtor to propose a "plan" to repay creditors over time – usually three to five years. Chapter 13 is also used by consumer debtors who do not qualify for chapter 7 relief under the means test.)

[Source: "Bankruptcy Process." United States Courts. USCourts.gov. Federal Judiciary, n.d. Web. 30 Apr. 2026.]

Note that single women with children and female-headed households form an overrepresented demographic within bankruptcy filers compared to their percentage of the population, according to research on the precarious financial lives of bankruptcy filers. This segment faces particular financial instability and represents a growing market opportunity for targeted advertising and outreach, especially through digital channels and social media platforms that reach women managing household finances and childcare expenses.

30%

Seniors over age 65 represent the fastest growing demographic group of bankruptcy filers in the United States. This expanding segment reflects longer life expectancies, fixed incomes, rising health care costs, and unexpected financial hardships in retirement, positioning attorneys to market specialized services addressing senior-specific debt challenges and financial planning concerns.

Small business owners and commercial enterprises experiencing financial distress also constitute a high-value segment for bankruptcy attorneys. Business bankruptcy filings increased 33.5%, rising from 17,051 to 22,762 cases in recent reporting periods, with the retail, health care, automotive, hospitality, and energy sectors experiencing the greatest increases.

Top Factors People Consider When Choosing This Type Of Account

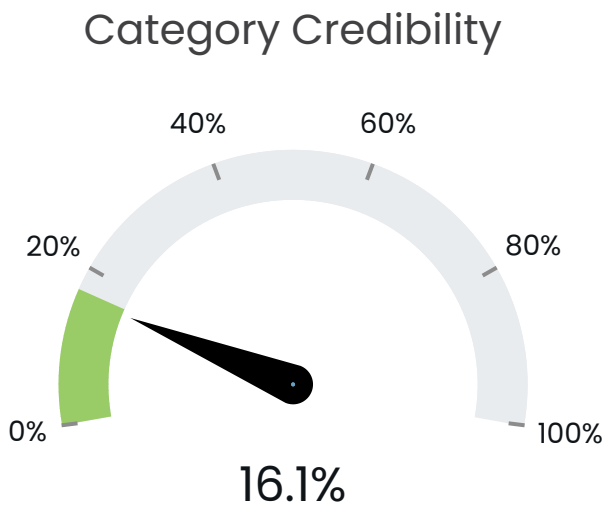

- Experience and expertise: Clients prioritize attorneys who focus mainly on bankruptcy law, with substantial case volume and familiarity with specific chapters (7, 11, or 13). Membership in professional groups is also valued.
- Fee structure and cost transparency: Clients want clear upfront pricing, including flat or hourly fees and any extra costs. Transparency and willingness to discuss payment plans signal trustworthiness.
- Communication and client focus: Clients prefer attorneys who explain things clearly, respond quickly, and provide regular updates. They also value lawyers who prioritize the client's best financial outcome.
- Reputation and online reviews: Reviews, referrals, and disciplinary history help clients judge reliability and professionalism. Testimonials give insight into real client experiences.
- Local knowledge and support staff: Familiarity with local courts and procedures is important for smoother case handling. Strong support staff improves efficiency and reduces client stress.
- Personal compatibility and comfort level: Clients need to feel comfortable and trust their attorney during a stressful process. A good personal fit can strongly influence the decision.
- Credentials and professional qualifications: Education, licensing, and certifications confirm basic competence. These credentials reassure clients of professional standards.

Credibility - and whether a person has it or not - determines who you trust for guidance and information you use to make decisions in your everyday life. The four components of credibility for any human being are (1) being known, (2) being likable, (3) being helpful, and (4) being trustworthy. Credibility is gained (or lost) by what one says, how they say it, what they do and, finally, what others say about them. Having credibility also requires having others' best interests at heart.

Indicates the information displayed has been produced by generative AI. This content differs from the rest of the data in AdMall, as it is produced in real-time and not human-verified. While it has been trained with every article from SalesFuel Today and Media Sales Today in the past six years, along with the works of C. Lee Smith, it can also draw information from public sources that may be unreliable. You should discuss any suggested course of action with your manager before proceeding. AdMall Sales Coach should not be used as substitute for legal advice, mental health therapy, HR guidance nor financial advice.
